

THINGS YOUR CHILD NEEDS TO KNOW BEFORE KINDERGARTEN

Here is a list of kindergarten readiness skills based loosely upon a preschool inventory given to children at the very end of a pre-kindergarten program. This is used as both a guiding document as well as an assessment at the end of the year.

Please keep in mind as you look over this list that children learn best with hands-on experiences, not memorization or drill practice! These early years with our children should be about fostering a love to play, explore and learn! Also, it is important to note that our children are all different and gifted in unique ways. Understand that each child develops at their own pace and will have different levels of skills upon entering kindergarten. Obviously, if your child has special needs, exceptionalism, or is delayed in a particular area, this won't necessarily be relevant to your child. This is simply a guide...not something to stress about!

Finally, all areas of development are of equal importance to young children! Gross motor and social development tasks are just as important as cognitive and pre-reading tasks at this age. Also, it is important to note that there is no prerequisite (besides age) for children to go to kindergarten here in the United States. Although it would be ideal for each child to come into kindergarten already mastering these skills, this is obviously not the reality for many children. Schools are prepared to meet the needs of individual students, regardless of their current ability.

Have fun learning together through games and various experiences while still encouraging your child's natural creativity!
